The First Regiment Band will be seen and heard in Henderson next Wednesday, May 17th. Judging from the very flattering press notices Band has been received with great enthusiasm everywhere, and Henderson should, and no doubt will, give them a full house. The News and Ob-

"There is no sort of doubt about the First Regiment Band being an aggregation of first-class musicians. The character of the music and the manner in which it was rendered was a manifest surprise to the audience. It was a performance that would have delighted the soul of a musicloving audience anywhere. The programme covered a wide range, lassic and popular, and the selections was rendered with a finish and spirit that moved and charmed. "When the curtain went up the band was given an ovation for the sake of the regiment of which it was formerly a part. At the close of each number it was met with a storm of applause, a genuine tribute to its own merits as a body of musicians." The Wilmington Messenger speaks of the concert given there as "a revelation from an artistic standpoint,' and says: "It plainly demonstrated that Sousa and Godfrey are not alone in Sousa and Godfrey are not alone in their glory, nor have they the market cornered on finished musicians, for the concert was equally as fine as those given in Wilmington by the bands of either the March King' or the Garter King.' The concert was superb and the audience was thunderous in its applause and kept encores constantly in vogue. "The programme was divided into two parts, and each a perfect gem. The variety of the numbers was within itself a feature, which pleased all. The selections from grand opera were rendered with a precision and sweetness that made the most fastidious critique marvel, while the fire and dash of the martial airs thrilled and rethrilled every heart.

"There are two Spaniards with the band, Antoio Cruz and Jose Manuel de la Cruz, and they are both congenial spirits and talented musicians. The band has along as a mascot, Veto, a bright Cuban boy." From the Charlotte Observer we take the following: "The Old North State has another oride, another treasure—the First Regiment Band. This organization ranks second only to Sousa and Godrey in the bands which have visted Charlotte. It took the town by Regiment Band. This organization ranks second only to Sousa and Godfrey in the bands which have visted Charlotte. It took the town by storm. The large and critical audience present was amazed and delighted at the genuine excellence of the performance. The band is beyond all question, the best that-has ever been here, with the exception, only, of those mentioned above."
